Revision Description:

Initial Release

Reason For Discontinuance

TSMC has announced the planned closure of its legacy 6-inch and 8-inch manufacturing facilities (Fab 2 and Fab 5) in Hsinchu, Taiwan, with manufacturing operations expected to cease by end of 2027.

At Analog Devices (ADI), we are committed to supporting our customers with long-term product availability and continuity of supply. ADI does not discontinue products that continue to have customer demand unless extraordinary circumstances make continued production impossible. To further strengthen supply resiliency, ADI has invested more than $2 billion in expanding manufacturing capacity at 180nm and larger process nodes, creating dual-source capabilities for more than 70% of our product portfolio. Much of this additional capacity has been established in our manufacturing facilities in Limerick, Ireland and Beaverton, Oregon to better protect our customers from supply disruptions. As a result, products manufactured in ADI's internal facilities are generally not subject to process-related discontinuance actions.

Following TSMC's announcement, ADI conducted a comprehensive assessment of alternative manufacturing solutions to ensure continued supply for affected products. For the majority of impacted products, qualified alternative manufacturing sources have been identified and will be communicated separately through Product Change Notifications (PCNs). However, despite extensive qualification efforts, ADI has been unable to establish a viable alternate source for the products identified in this notification. As a result, these products must enter the Last Time Buy (LTB) and Last Time Ship (LTS) process.

Given the limited remaining manufacturing capacity available at TSMC Fab 2 and Fab 5 prior to their closures, ADI strongly encourages customers to place LTB orders as early as possible. Early engagement will improve our ability to secure wafer capacity and maximize fulfillment of customer demand before production ceases.

This Product Discontinuance Notification includes recommended replacement products where suitable alternatives exist. In addition, the corresponding product pages on Analog.com contain links to this notification and have been updated to highlight available replacement options when applicable.

ADI recognizes the impact that product discontinuances can have on our customers and sincerely regrets any inconvenience resulting from this action. We remain committed to working closely with affected customers to minimize disruption and support transition planning. If you have questions regarding this notification or require assistance evaluating alternative solutions, please contact your local ADI sales representative. Thank you for your continued business and valued partnership.
